Editorial Review

About the Author

Nikki Pattillo graduated from Stephen F. Austin State University in Texas and began her career as a clinical and molecular biologist. She is the author of Children of the Stars: Advice for Parents and Star Children and also writes numerous newspaper articles to help raise awareness in consciousness on both environmental and spiritual issues. As a child, Nikki was psychic conversing regularly with her angels and guides. This natural gift was not understood by her family or friends and consequently she shut down her abilities out of fear. It was these same angels and guides that came to her later in life and said that it was time for her to allow her gifts to grow stronger and open a path for others, especially children, to follow in peace and harmony and without fear of their gifts. Children of the Stars: Advice for Parents and Star Children was written as a guide to help parents understand their Star children and to help each parent spiritually understand what is happening with these gifted children who are here to help us. It was written to help children understand and not be fearful of seeing and hearing things that others cannot see or hear. Nikki says, The most wonderful aspect of Star children is their willingness to take on the world and learn to make their own way through it. Star children will get to the point where they are able to mold society into something that reflects their energies and values. The truth that they hold and defend so well will reflect their integrity and spirituality and change the world as we know it.
